Summary of Duties: A Telecommunications Regulatory Officer plans, organizes and directs the activities of the Bureau of Franchise Development and Administration of the Department of Telecommunications. The Bureau develops, negotiates, enforces, and administers telecommunications franchise agreements in the City of Los Angeles. A Telecommunications Regulatory Officer may personally perform the above duties and does other related work. An employee in this class uses sound supervisory principles and techniques to build and maintain an effective work force and satisfy affirmative action responsibilities.

Distinguishing Features: A Telecommunications Regulatory Officer oversees, develops, and regulates all telecommunications franchises in the City of Los Angeles. An employee in this class formulates policies and procedures for enforcing performance and compliance requirements of telecommunications franchises. A Telecommunications Regulatory Officer also reviews revenue projections and service standards for cable television franchises and other telecommunications franchises.

A Telecommunications Regulatory Officer may act as the Franchise Development and Administration Bureau Head. An employee in this class may supervise another Telecommunications Regulatory Officer.

A Telecommunications Regulatory Officer, as a bona fide supervisor, performs the full range of supervisory activities. These include applying discipline, processing and resolving grievances, and rating employee performance.

A Telecommunications Regulatory Officer is different from a Telecommunications Planning and Utilization Officer. The Telecommunications Planning and Utilization Officer plans and develops uses of telecommunications systems primarily for City departments. A Telecommunications Regulatory Officer oversees the telecommunications systems of private operators authorized to provide systems service to the citizens of the City. A Telecommunications Regulatory Officer also formulates policy recommendations responding to developments in the telecommunications field.

Examples of Duties: A Telecommunications Regulatory Officer:

* Oversees the staff in the Bureau of Franchise Development and Administration who:
  * Negotiate with operators of private telecommunications systems the terms and conditions of franchise agreements.
  * Prepare and review evaluations and recommendations on franchise proposals.
  * Audit reports submitted by franchisees on system construction and franchise fees.
